

Case Study

EXECVIEW

IT

The IT service provider is focused on business technology that powers progress and helps organisations to create their firm of the future. With a strong focus on portfolio, programme and project management excellence, the IT company focuses on clear value realisation, stakeholder relationships, risk management and key milestone planning with their clients.

“I’d recommend Execview due to its usability - the intuitiveness of the tool is great.”

The Need to Change

The IT company handles hundreds of projects on a daily basis and senior managers need to see how they are doing at a glance. From this, they can easily identify issues within projects, fix potential problematic projects and make key governance decisions.

Before they partnered with Execview, the company's process for recording and displaying project data was manual, and a lot of time was consumed converting data from across the entire portfolio of projects run by the company. Data was not as reliable as it could have been – which was an issue when it came to taking key governance decisions based on this information. The company needed a change.

Implementation

Implementing new working practices can be difficult. On a scale as large as this IT company, this can be even more complex. L explains: “Configuration was tricky as we needed to be sure that it worked seamlessly with our own internal processes.

Internal sponsorship was imperative to the success of Execview’s implementation because it allowed the platform to be properly embedded into our daily practices. Project Managers took to using Execview really well and are happy with how much easier it has made their daily work, and how much harder their data now works for them.

Measurable results

L explains: "We can now assimilate all of our projects in one day on Execview. We can get a view of them all together to establish and identify early warnings, trend analytics as well as month end records.

Previously, this process took several days to produce and was out of date by the time it was complete. Execview has saved many hours and provides us with the most recent data, so decisions can be taken quickly and with confidence.

Our reporting overheads have been reduced, insight into what is going on makes a more successful business because of better managed and better quality data, providing a holistic view of relevant departments."
